WIFE RE-ENACTS TRAGEDY STAGED ABOARD YACHT

PLAYS HUNT FOR PIRATES WHO KIDNAPED WEALTHY BOY

of the darkness 24 hours previous.

The audience included two district attorneys, detectives, a police captain, a sister of Collings and a crowd of the curious on the Long Island shore and in small boats near the Penguin.

Typically calm at first, the former Lillian Collings of Boston, 12 years the junior of the slain millionaire, broke and wept, progressed through various stages of nervous reaction until, at the conclusion of her dramatic re-enactment she sobbed and screamed and laughed hysterically in the arms of Miss Helen P. Collings, of Stamford, her sister-in-law.

ENACTS TRAGEDY

She enacted the heading of the Penguin by two armed men shortly after midnight of Wednesday while the yacht lay off Northport. Their seizure of the ship while she and her daughter, Barbara, were locked in the cabin. The movement of the Penguin to a point off Northport, across the Long Island Sound, and the dropping of the anchor, were all enacted. Her own forced abduction of the drifting Penguin and her child with the pirates in a canoe, and her attack upon her, were enacted upon her by one of the men in the canoe.

COUPLE DEVOTED

Dr. H. P. Collings of Hot Springs, Ark., father of the victim, and the latter's brother, Herbert S. Collings of New Haven, went to Oyster Bay for the re-enactment, and accompanied by Dr. Collings, who expressed unqualified belief in his daughter-in-law's story, and remained to take legal steps for her release if she was not freed today.

"They are trying to make something out against her which is not true," he said. "Her and Lillian were devoted and were never separated. I am a widower in Florida together."

The district attorneys about the yard for the re-enactment were Fred Minder of Suffolk County and Alvin C. Edwards of Nassau County.

PHOTOS ARE TAKEN

Mrs. Collings was taken directly from the boat, which had been towed from Stamford to Oyster Bay, from a "Garden City hotel where she had the night under guard of a police man."

Miss Collings accompanied her by special permission of the authorities and they sat and stood with them around each other on the Penguin.

About 150 photographs of finger-prints on the boat were taken to King arrested the boat from Stamford to Oyster Bay, from a "Garden City hotel where she had the night under guard of a police man."

A 25 caliber automatic pistol with empty chambers was found, like a hunting knife. Apparently the gun had not recently been used.

Another discovery was a stack of 25 crime story magazines which were examined for possible marginal notations.

The re-enacted young man, graduate of Smith College, began her re-enactment in a determined manner. Her nervousness was apparent in the frequent biting of her lower lip.

As she progressed in the details of her horrible experience she wept openly and when she left the boat she sobbed hysterically and could not be comforted.

A piece of fabric, about six inches square and apparently blood-stained, was cut out of the rear seat of the Penguin and will be subjected to a chemical analysis.

OFFICIALS SILENT

At the conclusion of the re-enactment, King refused to amplify an earlier statement in the effect that he believed Mrs. Collings was telling a truthful story that contained certain discrepancies resulting from her condition of mind caused by her harrowing experience.

Dr. Atty. Edwards, who had been formed any opinion as to whether jurisdiction of the case was in Nassau or Suffolk County, replied:

"I haven't decided anything about this case."

Meanwhile, where, detectives studied the diary of Mrs. Collings. This was found after the crime upon the floorboards on the deck of the yacht. Near it was a broken mirror which may have been used in the attack on Collings.

The names of many prominent persons were obtained in a mystery, detectives said. Some of them are the contents, however, were not disclosed although police said they might prove of some importance.

While boats and planes searched Long Island Sound and the island of Long Island, the two men said to have slain the victim, were in the strange case was solved.

AIDS DAUGHTER

Herman P. Collins, 76, found Boston musician and father of Mrs. Collings, was located at the Hotel Mohican in New London, and notified of the tragedy.

He had been reported as missing from Block Island, where he spent a month's vacation. He hurried at once to Stamford to aid his daughter.

William H. Leeds, multi-millionaire in real estate, personally aided Long Island authorities in their investigation. His cruiser, Flying Fox II, and his amphibian plane, Pegasus, were used in the search for Collings and his daughter.

Leeds himself accompanied police on the cruiser.

Two yachts found afloat today in the sound, one near Hell Gate bridge and another two miles from Lloyd's point, may be clues in the case.

The former the Oh Boy, contained a woman's clothing, kimono and dress.

INSPECT BOATS

The other craft, unidentified, was shortly before dawn yesterday in an anchored, open motorboat in Oyster Bay, 150 yards off shore.

Two detectives were sent to look it over. Mrs. Collings first wrote to the Oyster Bay Fishermen who found her and her daughter, and later in an anchored boat at dawn yesterday.

"For God's sake find the Penguin," she told her story of piracy, kidnapping, attack and murder.

Two men, she said, boarded the Penguin off Northport from a canoe about midnight Wednesday. She was locked in her cabin. She heard the men demand her husband to take them to New York City, as they had a wounded comrade who needed a doctor.

"They threatened to shoot him," she said, and ran about an hour, evidently with the pirates directed by her husband.

TELLS OF ATTACK

Then it stopped and she heard Collings attack. "This isn't New York—it's Stamford," she said.

"There were curses and a lot of stamping around," she said. "It must have been a fight. There was a crash of glass. Then I saw something like the deck, like a hole falling."

"After a minute I heard one of the men say, 'Don't let him go!'"

"There was a silence then and then I heard them walk across the deck and there was a loud splash."

She was then released from the cabin, she said, and saw the pirates for the first time. Mrs. Collings said the other youth about 30. It was dark, with no light on the craft.

She did not tell what Barbara, asleep in another cabin, apparently to protect the child.

The vessel was then taken into a canoe and she accompanied them with a struggle. But while the canoe was at Oyster Bay the older man attacked her, she said, and she lost consciousness.

When she revived she was alone on the anchored motorboat at Oyster Bay, about 100 yards off shore. She began to scream and continued her screams until help came.

Meanwhile, the Penguin drifting with little Barbara asleep in the cabin, had long sighted by a fish party from the New Rochelle Yacht Club. The cruiser, they said, was drifting with the tide off Lloyd's Point, without lights.

BOARDED PENGUIN

Members of this party were N. L. Noteman, then Mr. E. N. Knapp and Harold T. Birnie. They were accompanied also by Mr. Noteman's brother, George DeWalt, the Valentin.

"We thought something was wrong when we saw the vessel drifting without lights," Noteman said. "As we drew alongside we heard a thrashing in the water about the yards away. I am sure we heard a muffled cry for help."

"I can't understand why the case was in Nassau or Suffolk County," he said. "I thought it could be solved by me."

Noteman placed the time as 2:30 p. m. He said that the pirates boarded the Penguin about 10 p. m. and that they abandoned the cruiser, taking her with them, about two hours later.

The "thrashing" heard by Noteman and his party was heard only once, he said. At least two hours must have elapsed before Noteman and his party found the Penguin drifting, which, then, too, the cruiser was drifting.

HOPE FOR OCEAN FLIERS FADES

Seattle, Sept. 11 (AP)—Hope that Don Menzies and C. A. Allen, missing transatlantic fliers, would be found alive was virtually abandoned today after numerous reports of planes passing over various sections of the Atlantic islands and northern Canada failed to yield any news.

Aviation experts and coast guard officers said there was scarcely a chance of finding the airmen, who took off from Japan Monday on a non-stop flight to Seattle.

Reports that a plane was heard passing over Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Monday, yesterday, were discounted when the coast guard officers Chelan and Banks, searching the waters in that vicinity, reported they had no confirmation of the reports.

Reports of a plane landing on Vancouver Island and also on a small island along the northern coast of British Columbia without confirmation after extensive investigations.

From brief messages in the Red Cross, the navy department, the weather bureau and through private sources word came of the damage.

The Pan American Airways officers in Miami were informed that 200 were dead in Seattle. Reports were sweeping toward Haiti and San Domingo, almost directly in their path. The weather bureau reported it to have been that early today.

Engineer Is Near Death in Blast on Speedboat

VICIM HURLED INTO SEA BY EXPLOSION

Craft Owned by Hugh Bancroft, Jr., Destroyed by Fire at Cohasset

John Howell, 35, of Minot st., Dorchester, engineer for Hugh Bancroft, Jr., was burned and seriously injured today when hurled 15 feet into Cohasset harbor by explosion of the motor in Bancroft's speedboat Margie.

Backfiring of the motor while Howell was attempting to start it ignited gasoline fumes in the engine room and caused the blast. The speed boat was practically destroyed by fire.

ON DANGER LIST. Howell was rescued from the harbor waters by two men on a dredger at work in the channel, and was taken to Oliver's Lobster Shop on the other side of the harbor, where he was given first aid.

Then he was taken to Cohasset Hospital, where he was found to have suffered first and second degree burns on the legs and arms, possible internal injuries and possible flame inhalation. His name was placed on the danger list.

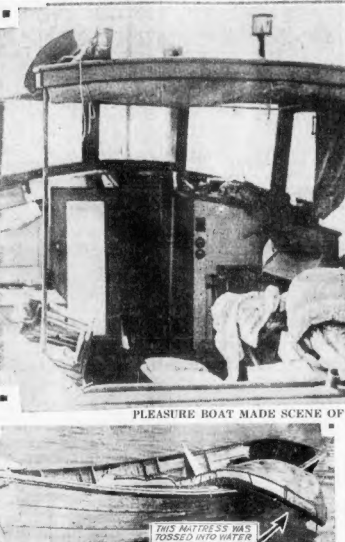

The Bancroft boat, a 20-foot Garwood flying a black flag with white skull and crossbones on the bow, was tied up at anchor when the explosion occurred.

FIRE SWEEPS BOAT. With the sound of the blast and the sight of the burned engineer hurtling into the water, several boats put out from the dock and pleasure craft at anchor, but that of the dredger was the first to reach Howell.

Other boats proceeded to the Margie, one of two speedboats owned by Bancroft, son of the president of the Financial Trust Companies of America, but before the flames could be extinguished the boat was almost a total loss through the fire.

LINDY IN MATELY ACROSS PACIFIC

Tolu, Sept. 11.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has not decided definitely what route he and Mrs. Lindbergh will follow on their return flight from China to the United States, but he has decided definitely it will not be the Northern or Siberian route. He said today: "The Siberian route is inadvisable in the winter time without a plane equipped with wheels or skis." Lindbergh said, "I really cannot determine until our visit to China has been completed which route we will take."

"We plan to leave Kamsung Air Field at 1 p. m., Saturday (12 midnight Friday, Eastern daylight time), and hope to reach China in three hours flying time. We are anxious to get to Shanghai to determine our future course, which will be one of three, across the Pacific by way of Honolulu; across Europe and the Atlantic by way of the Azores, or across Europe and home by way of the South Atlantic."

"The last time he called, just before we left Buffalo for Boston, he said he would fly here from Hollywood and make up his mind for me, whether I liked it or not. I miss him a lot and would like to see him, but we're not able to be married now even if he flew to Boston."

Clarkburg, W. Va., Sept. 11 (INS)—Harry Powers, West Virginia bluebeard, today was identified as the "A. R. Weaver" who cashed checks at Uniontown, Pa., for the account of Mrs. Dorothy P. Lemke of Northboro, Mass., his fifth murder victim.

"Weaver" was identified by a picture as Powers. The checks were for $274.22 and $133.01. "Weaver" left them at a bank on August 1 for collection. He returned August 12 and received the money.

PLAYED 'LONE WOLF'
Letters passing in from everywhere in the last few weeks indicate Powers had a grand time as a "Lone Wolf" love nabber.

Attorneys for the heirs of Mrs. Lemke have started suit here for the recovery of this money and charge that Powers also obtained money and securities totaling $15,000 from the widow.

When Powers was arraigned on the charge of first degree murder, he pleaded to hold the indictments until the county jail in order to block any demands for a change around over the killings.

Developed today that Eve Belle Strother was as much a victim of the following advertisement inserted by Miss Strother.

"Clarkburg, W. Va., refused American lady of the highest class desecrated correspondence for matrimony only. Age 45, height 5 feet 4 inches, weight 110 pounds, brown hair, blue eyes, very intelligent, good cook and housekeeper, and a good business woman. Have plain and considerable means. Will marry as soon as suited. Bachelor preferred from age 45 to 52."

Strother, now Mrs. Powers, met her "coward" husband through the love-correspondence racket.

Following a letter from a woman to Jackson, Miss., which suggested other victims of Powers might be found in East Chicago, Ind., a telegram was received from the police department of that point asking for fingerprints and an official photograph of the murderer.

FICTITIOUS FORTUNES BAIT IN MARRIAGE MART

The More Money, Smaller the Fee for Love Sick Woman Applicants

Correspondence, friendship, and matrimony clubs throughout the country, are daily establishing contacts between thousands of women and mail-order applicants for their love. Meanwhile the number of mail-order brides by Harry F. Powers hastened an investigation under way of the time the Powers murders were revealed. This is the sixth of a series of articles in which the Boston Evening American gives the results of its investigation of the correspondence clubs, which it had under way at the time the Powers murders were revealed.

"... Our lady members send pay, as well as the men. Unusually, they are accepted free of charge."

That sentence from the "strictly confidential" printed letter of the Harmony Club to "Herbert K. Davis," fictitious name used by the Boston Evening American in its investigation of the matrimonial correspondence bureau, opened up new and promising avenues of inquiry.

And it soon appeared that fees in the majority of the clubs vary widely for members of the opposite sexes.

ALL MEN PAY

Some of the clubs, it seemed, accept women free of charge, even "return" lists of desirable names, instead of going out and getting their own matrimonially inclined ladies into the fold. The male membership fee is their reason for doing business.

Many, too, grade their fees for women in inverse ratio to wealth. Such a mail-order marriage bureau welcomes into its fold free of charge the lady with $50,000 in her own right, but would make the addressee register about teacher, casting about for a matrimonial way out, pay dearly for the privilege of being dressed up in attractive verbiage in its literature.

That further explained two things. First, the preponderance of letters with large fortunes on many of the lists Herbert K. Davis received.

And, second, the disappointing revelation, when Davis got down

SLAIN TOTS' DOLLS ON SALE

PATROLMAN FRAKES PATROLMAN KUFFER

These dolls that brought happiness to the three little children of Mrs. Asia Elcher are checked over by policemen Herbert Frakes and Arthur Kuffer, of the Park Ridge, Illinois, police department. These lonesome "motherless babies" of bisque and china will be auctioned, one by one, with other belongings of the slain widow. Mrs. Elcher and her three children were murdered by Harry F. Powers, Clarkburg, W. Va., Bluebeard. Police all over the country are seeking information in investigation of matrimonial agencies. (International Newsweek photo.)

to writing to some of these ladies, that they were not so rich as they purported to be. Some of them not only were not rich, but were actually in search of riches. There was, for instance, the young lady from Sedalia, Mo., who wrote:

"I never correspond with a gentleman unless I know if he has any money, and how much. You say you have $5,000. Well, I'm from Missouri, Mr. Davis. If you will send me a check, I will believe you. Otherwise it's all off."

If Davis felt the least bit piqued about that, there were lots of others to console him. There was:

A widow, 44, worth $50,000.

A brunette, 25, worth $50,000.

A blue-eyed girl, 29, worth $25,000.

FORGER 'CURED' BY OPERATION

Massillon, O., Sept. 11 (AP)—Elimination of alleged criminal tendencies of Howard Buck, 29, of Akron, through a delicate operation on the brain, was believed accomplished here today by surgeons at the Massillon State Hospital where the operation was performed.

Declaring the operation was a success, surgeons stated that Buck, who was said to have become an unwilling addict of crime as a result of a head injury suffered in a football game in 1922 while playing at the University of Chicago, was rapidly recovering.

Buck, twice arrested on forgery charges the last time in Baltimore requested the operation. Hospital attaches said an examination conducted by Prosecutor Don Johnson of Summit County showed that the brain had become irritated from the skull fracture received in the 1922 football game.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 11 (AP)—Police today saw in the statement of Paul Humbert, of Brooklyn, father of Theodore Humbert, 23, interior decorator and chorus man, when body was found here yesterday that a $95,000 estate had recently been added to his son's, a probable motive for the murder.

The estate, the elder Humbert said, has been handed over by Charles Chapman, missing companion of Theodore, several months ago when he had suffered a severe heart attack and momentarily expected death. Chapman is being sought.

Chapman and Humbert had looked together on the 11-25 Fraser, sailing today, to go to England and claim the estate.

● Every woman who has slaved over the wash-tub or the dishpan knows that suds are the secret of successful washing.

So Procter & Gamble, the greatest soapmakers in the world, have now perfected a new soap discovery, almost magical in its sudsing power.

This new soap sensation is Oxydol, a real blessing to the woman who is seeking an easier way to do the hardest job in housekeeping.

Oxydol is supercharged (with pure rich soap) for 50% more suds than other soaps in granulated form—livelier suds that outwash and outlast all others!

Richer suds do the dirty work

Richer suds are the simple reason why Oxydol saves your strength and speeds your work.

Weak old-type suds can't get things really clean—you know that—because they quickly fizzle away to watery thinness.

When you buy soap, remember, it's suds you're really buying.

If the suds fall, the dirt falls back also—but Oxydol suds stand up and stay on the job!

Soaks clothes whiter

Oxydol's richer suds soak clothes white—without back-tiring rubbing.

Oxydol's creamier suds keep up and keep working—until the last particle of dirt is routed.

Oxydol washes everything safely, speedily, surely—clothes come out brighter, cleaner, sweet-smelling.

Softens hard water

The minute you put dirty clothes and greasy dishes into water you harden that water.

Oxydol makes all water soft.

In even the stubbornest hard water it gives 50% more rich live suds!

Wonderful for dishes

Weak, watery, falling suds mean streaky dishes.

Oxydol fairly charms away each speck of grease from dirty dishes and glassware.

They come out clean and sparkling—clean to dry without wiping if you like—because Oxydol suds don't cling!

Easier on your hands

Try Oxydol, it's safe and swift and sure—the nice way it leaves your hands tells you it's perfectly suited to even the most delicate clothes.

It is made from only the purest and finest of washing materials—as you would expect from the makers of Ivory Soap, who recommend it to you.

Don't go on needlessly rubbing your youth and strength away on washdays and over the dishpan—try Oxydol and its richer, easier-washing suds.

Ask your grocer today for the big-sized orange and blue package—there are better and easier washdays in it for you. Procter & Gamble.

UPROAR MARKS HEARING ON AUTO RATES

port for Gov. Ely's decision to call a special session of the Legislature to act on his report. The former Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission and former motor vehicle registrar, was not present because he considered the insurance commission's hearing a "side show" in view of the coming legislative session. This view also kept away other outstanding opponents of the present rate system.

Hardly had Commissioner Brown rapped for order than Judge Frederic H. Chase, representing 45 insurance companies, was on his feet asking to be heard, offering to produce evidence and call his first witness in the first.

This prospective witness, who it turned out, did not get a chance to tell his story first, was William M. Macgown, manager of the Massachusetts Automobile Accident Prevention Bureau.

STORM OF PROTEST.

This is the bureau that prepares the company statistics on claims, premiums and losses, on which the rates are based from year to year. There was an immediate storm against Judge Chase's move to get the floor first. Representative Daniel J. Conkley of Chelsea raised his voice above the din and cried:

"It is not fair for the companies to be heard first; the people should be heard first."

He was widely applauded and Mayor Henry Clough of Chelsea and others echoed his demand.

"I am here as an opponent of the rates, not in support them," said Judge Chase.

Voices answered him saying that he wanted to try to show they were not high enough.

Rep. Conkley, brother of Russell, which is one of the places hardest hit by the proposed increase, argued that the companies were "unfair" to the people, and he people should therefore have the first say.

OPPOSED BY AUTO CLUB

During the turmoil, Manager H. P. Goodwin of the Boston Auto Club put his organization on record as opposed to the rates and the whole present system. He supported the Governor and said his organization was hopeful the Legislature would effect a remedy.

Commissioner Brown said that everybody who wanted to speak would be heard, and he ruled that those from distant parts of the state should be heard first.

Mayor Clough of Chelsea was recognized and he presented the transfer of his city from the field zone 1-a classification which includes Fall River and Worcester. This means a higher rate than Springfield. The Chicago increase are from $4 to $7 for the different types of cars.

CHIEF OF POLICE

"Chicago's safety record does not justify increased rates," he said, and this was reiterated by Arthur Grandfield of Chicago, chief of Commerce.

Some covering all Hampden County was used.

Chicago had a large delegation present, including four aldermen, the manager of the traffic commission and the city solicitor.

Rep. William Kirkpatrick of Middlebury, representing the mayor and aldermen, asked that the whole matter be deferred until after the special session, known as W. Clark, a member of the Legislature from Amesbury, granted a protest signed by 175 residents.

When it came time for Boston's voice to be heard, Judge Chase again sought to put his case in first, but was side-tracked for the second time.

MAYOR TAKES FLOOR

Mayor Curley, arriving about this time, was given the floor and in the course of his remarks advocated a system combining the Connecticut financial responsibility law and the present system.

"I appreciate that there are limitations to the powers of the insurance commissioner," he said. "I also appreciate that in these days of difficulties in earning a livelihood, we have mills grinding out lawyers faster than lawyers are born."

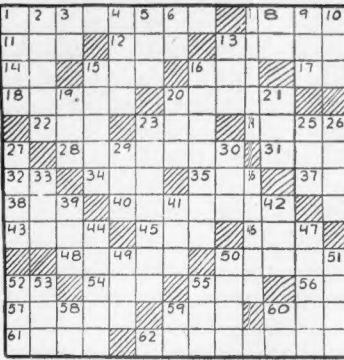

"They have to have some legal business, I am not condemning the legal profession, but there are some who do things which might be called unethical but which many people call criminal."

That such things are being done is apparent to everyone.

"Unless there is a change, we are going to drive the motorist of limited means off the highways, no matter how safely he may operate. We should drive the careless operator off the highways."

"The real error in the past has been to submit to the rates which our (Commissioner Brown) and your profession sustained. We have come here and protested and vigorously denounced you, but the Legislature did not convene until the following January."

"These interests, which are complainting of insufficient earnings, organized an ad-hoc lobby which operated between the time the rates were announced and the time the Legislature met--and that those most vulnerable in their opposition were clubbed into silence or given a ticket for a vacation which would keep them from the hearings."

Hymen Kaplan of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce called attention to a reduction of accidents in Chelsea, which had been previously only by an increase in the rates.

Mayor Whalen of Chelsea said on his record Chelsea should have a reduction no matter what the legislature does.

BRITISH BUDGET DEFENDED BY MCDONALD

London, Sept. 11 (AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald, opening the debate on the government's drastic economic bill in the House of Commons today, defended procedure by order in council as essential for speedy solution of the financial crisis.

Mr. MacDonald promised that the power to issue orders in council would last only one month. He said his duty in applying the national economy regulations was no less difficult and unpleasant than that of Chancellor Snowden yesterday.

CLAYTON MOVES REJECTION

A depreciation of the currency, he asserted, would have meant a much greater reduction in the unemployment rate than the present cut the government advocates.

When MacDonald had finished, J. R. Clayton, former secretary in the Labor cabinet, moved rejection of the economy bill on the ground that the government's course is calculated to deprive the masses of the necessities of life while the wealthy will enjoy luxuries.

MONEY FOLLOWS IN

Mr. Snowden sat up in bed today with a telephone on one side bringing many congratulatory calls on his budget speech.

Also there came a file of letters which contained money from people all classes, anxious to contribute to the national effort.

The pro-administration Times said, however, that the present measures were merely the first step and that the government's task has only begun.

The Herald, Laborite opponent of the government, was of opinion that the budget failed to put into practice the principle of the equality of sacrifice.

"Snowden has become a prisoner of the traditions of his party and has distributed the new burden without regard for the ability to bear it," said the Herald.

New Values at Kennedy's

You'll get a lot for your clothing dollar this fall, regardless of where you spend it. It's a buyer's market. You can just about write your own ticket . . . almost "name your price and take the suit."

This is no secret. And it isn't guess-work. The conditions existing in the clothing industry and the world at large make possible a bigger money's worth than you've received since the war. So buy now . . . because it's a golden opportunity to dress well at surprisingly low cost.

Kennedy's has been famous for value since the day it was founded, back in 1893. We have never patterned ourselves after Quality stores, nor Price stores - but we have sought to establish and maintain that happy combination - quality merchandise sold on a small margin of profit, thereby creating volume. The climax of this constant effort to out-value all other stores is reached this fall. And the merchandise is ready now.

Do yourself and Kennedy's a favor. Compare our showing, dollar for dollar, quality for quality, with what you're offered elsewhere. We'll abide by your verdict!

"My sweetheart smokes 'em ...

"NOW, you know, Bob was raised in a tobacco country. He has worked in two cigarette factories; and I have heard him say all of them are just the same. He says there are a lot of pipes and things like that running through the roofs of the factories and sometimes they look different, but that the way cigarettes are made is all the same.

"Bob says all tobaccos receive the same sort of drying—heat treatment; he called it. In one factory, he says, they may talk about 'baking' the tobacco; and in another they call it another name. He says what they actually do is to 'dry' the tobacco—reduce the moisture in them—and that the machine that they all use is called a 'Driver.'

"But when it comes to the quality of tobacco, that's quite a different story, so Bob says; some factories use mild, ripe tobacco, while others think that thick, heavy tobacco is good enough. Bob knows tobacco and he tells me that it takes good tobacco—mild and ripe—to make a cigarette as good as CHESTERFIELD.

"You know how it is when a piece of fruit tastes just right—not raw or sharp or too ripe or tasteless—just pleasing and satisfying. Well, that's the way it is with CHESTERFIELD—they just suit me right down to the ground—they satisfy."

— And HIS sweetheart smokes 'em too!

WILD ATTACK
GIVES K. O. WIN

HOPPING HITHER AND YON, LIKE ERNIE

Ernie Schaaf is keeping his finger under the proverbial bud on the wrist that is tight. In addition to out-of-town matches, the Blood & Thunder of Wrentham will be seen in at least two early matches here on the home turf. He is likely to go through with an old contact dealing for him to meet Jack Derval in the Boston Garden. Mister Derval is in the type of a cause Ernie to suit his toe. It is also said that Ernie will crawl through the ropes against the winner of the Mac Baer vs. Joe Sekyra match in the Boston Garden. Sekyra recently halted the winning streak of the much-touted Charlie Reizlaif. Reizlaif was just as big a favorite over Sekyra as Schaaf will be. Joe is like the little girl who had the belief that hung straight down her forehead. When he's good he's very, very good, as Mickey says. He is a good, sound, and a little bit of a nut. He can beat Baer and is matched with the Blood & Thunder. He can also cause Ernie of mischief.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF FOOTBALL BLOCKS—

Dad Judge Luta, the High Mogul of Baseball, pull a bone by "leaving the start of the World Series until Thursday, October 12." At the start of the "World Series" had been set for Tuesday, September 23, two days after the end of the major league races. The first two "World Series" games were played in Philadelphia, the first two times in Philadelphia for games. Friday and Saturday, October 2 and 3. By starting the series on October 12 the teams will play two games and then remain inactive three days, because of Sunday ball not being permitted in Philadelphia. In addition, the college football game on October 3 seriously will hurt the World Series publicity. Lands probably figures that will make little difference as the series will be a sellout anyway.

HOW ABOUT A BATTLE FOR THE UNEMPLOYMENT FUND?

Art Ross is in Montreal recuperating from his recent operation and starting his boys off to school. He soon will be back in Boston making ready for the Bruins' hockey campaign. Hockey is only a few weeks away. How time flies!

Lon Brouillard, matched to meet Jack Thompson for the world's welterweight title next month, certainly showed his nerve by agreeing to take on as tough and dangerous a slogger as Andy Callahan here a week from tonight. Brouillard not only can fight but is willing to fight.

The Can Fights and Willing to Fights are different birds, you know. The willingness of Brouillard, it pleases us fans so: Like Ernie Schaeff Lou doesn't pick, he meets and likes 'em all, Black, yellow, green or lily white, or big or fat or small!

BIG GREEN TEAM STARTS BALL ROLLING AT HANOVER

Shedding the role of Daniel in the lions' den which has been their unfortunate football fate for several years, the R. U. griders hope to be champions in their class.

Gate receipts may suffer, but Boston University is through with "putting on the act" as a trial horse team for eleven of the larger colleges and universities.

[illegible]

Army Game Injuries Took Toll All Year

They have annually trekked to New Point to give the Airmen a little of their game warden. Some of the R-1 players came back as the left. But that was unusual. Most of them ambled back on crutches with bruises and bumps and pained faces. And these bruises and bumps are persistent things. The clinging in a football player for the entire season.

R. U. will open with Williamstown on Monday night. That game is booked for 7:30. The next two weeks from tomorrow, the team will play New Hampshire, George Washington, Geneva, DePaul, Rhode Island, Tufts, Manhattan and Boston College. The last four follow in order. DePaul will be played at Greencastle, Indiana, and Tufts at Medford. The other contests will be staged at Riverdale. That's a great schedule.

Frederick Fand Rogers, whose official title is Dean of Student Health and Physical Education (athletic director to some) is the man behind all this. Rogers came to B. U. last week from New York where he was engaged in a similar occupation—keeping checks rudd and sports ambition high.

Clem, Hootstein Are Fine Backs

The R U. backfield will have a fine pair in Carl Clem and Phil Hootstein. Hootstein has proved his worth. He is as slippery as a eel in a grease jar and should have Terriers scoring near.

Other R U backs will be Tom McGuire, Emil Palomino and Alexander Houston, all back from near 800.

That's not a bad start for an line and there's more coming up from freshmen, including Sta-
"isher and Leo Siltan, tackles, who hip the scales at 380 and 200 respectively.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 11. For rest Branch who was shifted to the center squad in the wing and a half year, was today shifted to center again by Head Coach Jack Cannell of Dartmouth.

Branch will start a battle to take over the regular center position which seems to be held now by Kimball.

With seven full teams and a few extra players working out, including a number of veterans from prospects appear bright. One big drawback is in the weakens, as Capt. Yedlick's collapse of knee, which is apt to fold up as a memory.

Forrest Branch, a former Medford high school football player, is working under Coach Hubba Coakley at the local school. Branch was one of the fastest schoolboys in the area and his speed accounted for his being shifted to end at Dartmouth for a time.

Sharkey, Carnera Must Post $5,000

The commission at the same time ordered post battles to exclude their training personnel with ten days of work in New York or vicinity.

QUINNET SELDOM LIVES SINCE '12 IN LOCAL PLAY

By BILL GRIMES

Although the capturing of the United States open title and the twice winning of the national amateur are the outstanding feats in the career of Francis Quinnet, only a few of the famous successes of this State champion realize that he has never been defeated once in a local match since 1912.

Francis Quinnet, a native of Boston, was born on September 12, 1892. He was a member of the Boston Golf Club and the Massachusetts Golf Association. He was a member of the United States Golf Association and the British Golf Association. He was a member of the Royal Golf Club and the Royal Golf Club. He was a member of the Royal Golf Club and the Royal Golf Club.

SPORTS REEL

Bobbi Hopkins of Wollaston, above, teamed with George Sexton of Charles River today against A. K. Thompson of Charles River and Ellis Gates, Jr., of Bran Rurn in the Charles River four-ball junior. Hopkins won fame last year as medalist in the Hearst junior golf tourney. He is one of the best young golfers of the Greater Boston area group.

Quinnet Took Good for Other Golfers

As soon as Quinnet's feat at Foxcroft was made public, a general feeling that he could be the greatest amateur champion in the world was created. He was so far superior to anything else in the world that he was called the "King of the Club." He was so far superior to anything else in the world that he was called the "King of the Club." He was so far superior to anything else in the world that he was called the "King of the Club."

George Lott, above, battered open a path to his semi-final match today at Forest Hills, N. Y., against champion Johnny Doe. Lott has been failing to win in the title singles tourney. Doe is back at top form. Their meeting today should be one of the tennis classics of the year. The result is a tossup.

JACK'S HANDS CUMING HIM BOTHER

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 11 (NS) Apparently favoring a pair of boxer hands, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, failed to put loose here last night when he boxed five rounds against four northwest fighters.

With Dempsey issuing times and none of his opponents was known as a contender.

After the fight, Dempsey was the first to speak. He said he was not a boxer, but a fighter. He said he was not a boxer, but a fighter. He said he was not a boxer, but a fighter.

League Court Politics

The League Court decision in the Austro-German Customs Union case has served one useful purpose, at least. It has convinced even pro-League propagandists in this country that the League of Nations and its judicial appendage are both dangerous political enterprises.

This view is expressed by pro-League and anti-League newspapers alike. For example, the New York Times, in its second editorial on the topic, concedes:

"That the eight-to-seven decision against the Austro-German Tariff Union was dictated by national sentiment is obvious."

The World-Telegram, another pro-League paper, admits:

"It looks to us as if political considerations may have influenced some of the judges."

The New York Evening Post regrets, in similar language, that the decision "should seem to be so colored by the national bias of the attending judges," and adds:

"The significant aspect of the decision lies in the fact that France, her allies and close friends were all found in the same camp."

Looking toward next December, the New York Evening Sun, an opponent of the League and League Court, says:

"If and when the League Court protocol comes into the Senate chamber, it should meet its death. Never before has it looked so dangerous as it appears in the light of last week's performance."

Outside New York sentiment is the same. Thus the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

"The eight-to-seven decision in this case was thoroughly unsatisfactory. It bears what are widely regarded as unmistakable traces of French political maneuvering, and the prestige of the Court will suffer from it."

Describing the process of the decision, the Baltimore Sun says:

"The German representative voted in the interest of his nation, while the representative of France and the French allies voted in the interest of the French nation. . . . This sort of thing is not in accord with our ideas of judicial impartiality. In sum, the whole case against American entry into the League of Nations or the League Court stands confessed. The Court is shown BY ITS OWN ACTS to be an organization actuated by SELFISH NATIONAL INTERESTS."

What chance would this country have before such a tribunal in any international dispute?

The answer is self-evident. The United States DOES NOT BELONG in any such Court, and must STAY OUT.

Ely Wars on Auto Rates

Governor Ely has decided to convene an extraordinary session of the Massachusetts Legislature to secure reformation of the irritating and excessive compulsory automobile liability insurance system.

This system now exacts in excess of $21,000,000 A YEAR FROM THE AUTOMOBILE OWNERS.

And it now proposes to fasten an additional $2,500,000 upon them through the new rates before Insurance Commissioner Brown for approval.

Governor Ely proposes a five-point program in the hope that the burdens against which the automobilists protest with universal accord may be relieved.

POINT NO. 1.—Automobiles must drive with less caution if there is to be a reduction of damage costs, which last year resulted in sixteen millions of dollars being paid to 65,000 claimants.

POINT NO. 2.—He would assess a demerit fee upon reckless drivers. A rebate would be paid to those who drive with care and whose records were clean.

POINT NO. 3.—He would have a technical study made of the inequitable rates, which now find the people paying rates VARYING BETWEEN $16 AND $145 a year for the same right to operate their cars.

POINT NO. 4.—He would have the insurance corporations pool their interests and organize a single company to eliminate tremendous overhead expenses.

POINT NO. 5.—If they refuse to combine, he would have the Commonwealth take over and operate the business through a State fund.

When the present law was adopted, about a dozen companies were engaged in this form of insurance in this State.

New companies have sprung up ever since. While some of them have disappeared, leaving the insured automobilists to foot the bill and suffer the losses, there are still seventy-nine companies operating, with their multiplicity of expenses. OUT OF EVERY $1 PAID BY THE INSURED AUTOISTS, 35 CENTS GOES TO THE COMPANIES FOR EXPENSES, FEES AND PROFITS.

These companies are solidly entrenched. Their lobby influence with the Legislature is tremendous. Governor Ely may find they will defy him and the public, ignore his threat of a State fund and boldly proceed to put their own scheme into operation.

If allowed their way, they will eliminate entirely the compulsory insurance system, the social purpose of which is to guarantee our people indemnification for any injury they may sustain FROM ANY CAR OPERATING ON THE HIGHWAY.

The public want the system maintained, and they want it strengthened against fraud and manipulation.

They believe the rates to be excessive and they want them reduced.

Governor Ely may find he will have to rely upon a State and.

At any rate, he is to be complimented for his courage and frankness in discussing with the people a vexatious, irritating and annoying and expensive problem, which some timorous politicians believe to be freighted with dangerous political consequences.

He has exhibited the sort of frank democracy that Thomas Jefferson intended.

LITTLE MIKE VENGALLI is dead.

He was playing in the street.
A big car swung around the corner.

There were six men in the car.
As they came to the place where Mike played,

Guns roared.
A man fell.

Five children fell.
One of them was little Mike.

The bullet had gone through him very easily.
For he was only five years old.

WHO KILLED LITTLE MIKE?
"One of the men in the car," you say.

Yes, but there was more to it than that—
Much more.

That man pulled the trigger.
But who gave him the chance.

To pull that trigger?
How did those six men dare to ride.

Publicly, on such an errand?

And bad things.

But we weren't doing things like that.
There were guns then, too.

And quick ways of making a get-away.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Thoughts while strolling: New taxis featuring free cigarettes and expensiveness of breath loosens. The Beaux Arts Apartments with starters clad as gondoliers. And a congerie on a platform. Sign: "Health Reducing In a Minute."

Falls, canters. Walter T. Turnbull.

I always hurry past one of those big gas tanks, fearing it will explode. Japanese-American tailors. Bus placards: "Courtesy P. A. Div."

The only thing that does these days. A bent over lamp post and a shaffer of glass. Fannie Hurst thinner than ever.

Nobody can strut like Alexander Woolcott. Or twirl a cane like George M. Cohan. No coloring in my notion is as exquisite as the throat of a pigeon. The wind against skyscrapers—like cat-guns in a gale. Didn't Burns refer to one of his verses as a "random click?"

Old Tories of the Sunflower Decade who walk along Murray Hill Tree tops turning yellow. Some how I long for a small town in the Fall. And evening bells. Smell of bonfires. And the soft haze of lonely twilight. Wonder how Edie Cantor happened to think of those white rimmed glasses?

Credit jewelry stores almost all vacant. The 39th street toner who heralds: "Get Shorn and Shampooed Without Talk." Half the fun is chatting with a barber.

There's always a crisp assurance about expert advertising copy writers. So many women in New York resemble Fannie Brice.

Bolton Mallory, editor of Life and bride, Nancy Carroll. A girl with a mandolin. I thought they had one out Travel bureau holly-hood India. Gandhi has proven the best of press agents. And, too, such names as Bombay and Calcutta touch off the imagination.

The very-voiced marble-entrances of those modernistic skyscrapers—like opening your eyes under gray Irving Berlin has a sprinkle of gray.

What became of the whalebone industry? The only thing I think of I'd like for dinner tonight is cold macaroni.

A pair of Toledo, O. honeymooners write me of hopping into an open horse drawn carriage holding forth around the Plaza the other dusk. They told the venerable driver to swing around the park. He sat on his perch immobile until reaching a dim lit part of the park. Without turning his head he offered: "There's a good five minute parking stretch along here."

The ancient jehus seem the last link between New York as I first saw it and as it is today. They are lonely and tired old men from County Cork who try valiantly to carry on because there is nothing left for them to do. "When this falls," one of them told me, "the next step is the poor house." Next to the Plaza their best stand was on the 34th side of the old Waldorf.

I am told, however, traffic regulations will not permit them at the new Waldorf. That is a pity!

Because the new Waldorf is catercornered from my coop, I find myself in close touch with various surprises by peering in every few days. The wrinkles that impressed me the greatest in the railroad station deep in the basement. Here private railroad coaches are shunted from Grand Central and owners may step into waiting elevators and whisk to their apartments.

I wonder if anyone can castle builders have indulged their dream of pulling up to the home town depot in a private railroad car. I've even thought of naming it up a name for mine.

I heard you were dining at the Pavilion Royale the other night," writes Elsie R. "How does one spot such a distinguished gourmand? I tried and failed."

My wife, peering over my shoulder when she should be finishing her sten scrubbing, suggests looking for a spoon in the coffee cup.

Sluggish Trade Shows Prosperity Loan Need

By Merryly Stanley Ruker

The backwardness of the indicators of general business conditions in showing the normal seasonal upturn at this time of year emphasizes the urgent need for a constructive program.

Since April, the improvement in the volume of trade accomplished during the first third of the year has been effaced, and the end of the summer period has been characterized by a double bottom.

Buying power all around has been restrained by the distinctly subnormal character of the construction industry.

Private interests are timid and hesitant, each waiting for the other to act.

Cautious capital meantime flows into securities of the very highest grade, especially the obligations of the United States Government.

The Federal Government recently again demonstrated its superb credit by making a long term loan at the low coupon rate of 3 per cent.

It is to be regretted that the treasury is using its credit for the purpose of offsetting budget deficits, rather than for the constructive, job-creating purpose of a widespread program of public works.

As the third winter of subnormal business approaches, it becomes increasingly evident that NO OUTSIDE MAGIC is going to obviate the need for a determined effort on the part of alert business and political leaders to organize for recovery.

Time is of the essence for fruitful remedial activity, and President Hoover should delay no longer in the matter of calling Congress in special session to consider the proposal for a prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000.

Such a huge capital fund could be prudently expended for essential public works, such as improvement of highways, development of power sites, flood control, reforestation, advances for the elimination of grade crossings, and the modernization of public buildings.

Such a plan is in line with creative thinking by the foremost scientific economists, who look upon public works as a balance wheel of prosperity and depression, urging that they be expanded in time of depression and retarded in periods of prosperous trade.

Not thinking in terms of profit, but of service, the Government CAN AFFORD TO ACT while private interests vacillate.

By thus breaking the ice, the Government would set an example in courage to private interests, which have been piling up constructive projects until a more propitious time.

Aside from the social and humane advantages of initiating job-creating activities, the Federal Government by doing now the projects which it will undoubtedly have way over a period of years, would practice true economy by taking advantage of prevailing low costs.

Action on the part of the Federal Government must be prompt enough and far-reaching enough in scope to turn the scales.

Face-saving half measures are not only ineffective, but tend to impair confidence in leadership.

The figure, $5,000,000,000, is based on careful thought. It is believed that the various departments of Federal Government have in their pigeonholes plans for the spending of such a huge sum.

Such a display of courage by the Federal Government would stop the current tremendous wastage of the work-power of the 6,000,000 unemployed.

Moreover, it would set in motion a spiral of new tonic influences which would help to end the anomaly of hunger and malnutrition while the markets of the world are glutted with supplies.

The acute economic maladjustment is a challenge to leadership, which should seek to attack the depression on all fronts by an economically sound plan for restoring balance in the realm of production and distribution.

A do-nothing policy while the storm rages tends to feed the factors making for a vicious circle of depression.

The situation constitutes a challenge to the intelligence and capacity for self-government of the American people.

Those who, in the spirit of Oriental fatalism, want merely to stand by and see what happens are, by acts of omission, perpetrating large sections of the working population.

Under the American Constitution, President Hoover, through the capacity to summon Congress ahead of its normal session, holds the key to the situation.

There is no doubt of his desire to do what is helpful. It is to be hoped that the Chief Executive will act promptly along lines intended to help lift business from the dead center of continuing depression.

By Edgar A. Guest Just Folks

Two Sentimentalists

He was a sentimental man. He'd often shed a tear When someone came and poured a tale of sorrow in his ear

And wiping dry his misty eyes he'd say: "I wish I knew A way to end your misery, but nothing can I do."

His neighbor was a hardened case and gruff as gruff could be. He never shed a misty tear where anyone could see.

He mocked and jibed at sentiment and sneered at people good But if a poor man needed them he'd send him coal and wood.

The sentimental man disliked to look on scenes of woe. He'd talk of wrongs men ought to right, but never strike a blow.

The tough and tough old customer who lacked the art of speech Befriended every weaker man who stepped within his reach.

I do not think I'm fit to judge man's conduct on this earth. I know it's very difficult to value human worth.

I merely note this difference 'twixt two men, wide apart. The gas had puffed on his lips—the other in his heart.
